

Vinci & Rakos Parfums By Predominate Notes and Categories

The Vinci & Rakos Parfums have been arranged by a combination of perceived predominate notes and categories to help in the selection of a new scent. The Parfum categories and descriptions were based on years of working and listening to the comments, preferences and interpretations of my clients. The sense of smell is very subjective, so no one will describe an aroma or odor the same way, agree which category would apply or which notes are in a blend. The descriptions were written with these ideas and thoughts in mind, so many of the Parfums are listed in more than one category and reflect the view of my clients. If pertinent, a reference to a fragrance type on the market is noted. The Vinci & Rakos Parfums are full bodied, undiluted with no added alcohol or extenders.

Floral Combinations and Flowers

Almost all parfums contain some floral notes in their composition, in particular, Rose. Rose is one of the oldest notes used in parfum development, and it is experiencing a new and exciting level of interest with softer, gentler blends for the modern client.

Gardenia is probably the most intense floral note and somewhat cloying. To make it more wearable, a lighter, softer, Sheer Gardenia was created.
